You provide a service without becoming the owner of the product, you are the contact person for buyers and you coordinate (part of) the logistical process

Self certification is mandatory. There are 2 options:

1. If you sort, wash, cut and/or pack (these operations fall under prepared primary product), then you must meet all the requirements of the scope trade B2B from the certification scheme CoC.
2. If you process or handle products, then you have to comply with all the requirements of the processed products scope from the CoC certification scheme.

Which requirements apply depends on the activities you perform:

tip: click on the title or description below and you will be redirected to the appropriate certification page

- 1 You grow plant products

You must meet all the requirements of the Plant Products Certification Scheme.

Do you also purchase unpackaged products? If so, then all the requirements from the COC certification scheme that apply to B2B sales and purchases also apply.
- 2 You produce eggs on a poultry farm

You must meet all the requirements of the certification scheme Eggs. This scheme is only available in Dutch.

Do you also purchase unpackaged products? If so, then all the requirements from the COC certification scheme that apply to B2B sales and purchases also apply.
- 3 You produce milk on a dairy farm

You must meet all the requirements of the certification scheme Milk. This scheme is only available in Dutch.
- 4 You process or prepare primary products (raw materials) into certified semi-finished or finished products

You must meet all the requirements of the Prepared and Processed Products scope from the CoC certification scheme.
- 5 You buy unpackaged certified products and sell them to consumers

You must meet all the requirements of the consumer sales / consumer facing organizations (CFO) scope from the CoC certification scheme.
- 6 You buy and sell certified unpackaged products B2B with the label

You must meet all scope trade B2B requirements from the CoC certification scheme.

You provide a service without becoming the owner of the product

Certification is not mandatory. Inspection at the service provider is part of a client's inspection. But, independent certification is also possible. There are 2 options:

1. If you sort, wash, cut and/or pack (these operations fall under prepared primary product), you must meet all the requirements of the scope trade B2B from the certification scheme CoC.
2. If you process or handle products, you must meet all the requirements of the prepared and processed products scope of the CoC certification scheme.
